Description

Throughout the Pet Rescue Saga web application , the user will notice that he will have to go through, like the Candy Crush Saga iphone app, for several challenges at different levels . At the initial level, for example the user has to fulfill a goal, clearing more than 80% of the blocks, thus saving two little pigs that are at the top of all blocks. Only then will the user be able to move to the next level. Moving on to other levels, the goal will vary. Some ask the user to save an "X" number of animals at the top of all blocks, other levels require the player to have a minimum number of points and to clear a certain percentage of blocks. As in most games, the degree of difficulty is becoming more and more difficult. The user starts his game with 5 lives that can be visible at the top of the game screen, heart-shaped. He has to fulfill all the tasks requested in each level, otherwise he will lose a life, regardless of whether he has fulfilled one of them, which makes perfect sense only after fulfilling all that is requested is that he will be able to pass of level . At the end of having exhausted the first life, the stopwatch is activated. 30 minutes counting down to when the user has lost all their lives have to wait for this chronometer to be back in the "0" minutes to recover all their lives. There are two other hypotheses other than waiting: you expect there to be some users who offer you a life, or you can pay for the five lives, using Facebook credits.
