

LudoClub

By Moonfrog

4.4/10

android

ios

windows

macos

Description

All you need to do to challenge a friend to play is to start a conversation. Click the name of your friend or by pressing the plus icon +. In the conversation window, tap the game controller icon below where you enter the text of the message, and then select the game you want to play. In LudoClub, you can play in any place and situation, for example on the way home or work, or when you get bored at home, provided you have access to the internet, because the game is not available in off-line mode. The game has no age limit, it is suitable for everyone. It is also not complicated, so everyone is able to master its principles. Have you tried playing the LudoClub game? If not, download it for free and enjoy the fun! The Ludo Club game is available on both Android and iOS, so no one has to worry that he can not play a round with a friend. Remember that the game has a limited number of participants, so you have to organize a group of four, which consistently and fluently will play the game in Chinese. For people who remember very well board games even from childhood, it is a great idea to refresh yourself the rules of playing this wonderful board game. The game is available in several modes of competition. You can play with real friends, a systemically selected user or a completely system-generated random. Each mode has its own advantages, which allow you to play Ludo Club regardless of the situation and the availability of friends on the software application. Are you ready for the game that won the first places in the ranking of the most popular games? Check it out yourself and download Ludo Club now!

Review

Ludo is an old children's game created in late Victorian times and based upon the ancient Indian game of Pachisi. There are other Western versions of Pachisi such as Parchís from Spain, Parcheesi from the USA and Uckers, a form of Ludo played in the Royal Navy (and apparently some non-British navies) on a Ludo board.

A Ludo board is square with a pattern on it in the shape of a cross, each arm being divided into three adjacent columns of eight squares. The middle squares form the home column for each colour and cannot be landed upon by other colours. The middle of the cross forms a large square which is the 'home' area and which is divided into 4 home triangles, one of each colour. At each corner, separate to the main circuit are coloured circles (or squares) where the pieces are placed to begin.

Counters start their circuit one square in from the end of the arm and adjacent to the starting circle. Avoid modern boards which incorrectly place the first square at the end of the arm. The starting square, the starting circle, the home triangle and all the home column squares are coloured to match the corresponding pieces. Each player chooses one of the 4 colours (green, yellow, red or blue) and places the 4 pieces of that colour in the corresponding starting circle. A single dice is thrown to determine movement. Players take turns in a clockwise order; highest throw of the dice starts.

In each throw, the player decides which piece to move. A piece simply moves in a clockwise direction around the track given by the number thrown. If no piece can legally move according to the number thrown, play passes to the next player.

A throw of 6 gives another turn. A player must throw another 6 to move a piece from the starting circle onto the first square on the track. The piece moves 6 squares around the circuit beginning with the appropriately coloured start square and the player then has another turn.

If a piece lands on a piece of a different colour, the piece jumped upon is returned to its starting circle. If a piece lands upon a piece of the same colour, this forms a block. This block cannot be passed or landed on by any opposing piece.

When a piece has circumnavigated the board, it proceeds up the home column. A piece can only be moved onto the home triangle by an exact throw. The first person to move all 4 pieces into the home triangle wins.

It might be an old game, but through the past year Ludo has gained a lot of popularity. It is a wonderful game which is appropriate for family and friends at all ages.

✓ Pros

- It wont use much internet
- Ability to use chat while playing
- Easy to use
- There is no age restriction

✗ Cons

- The game is available only on-line
- It does not contain boosters
- You can get bored quickly

Tips

1. Try to be in a place marked with an asterisk
2. Try to kill other users

Download

Official Site | App Store | Google Play

Social

Facebook

