Description

Skype is a popular instant messenger that allows you to conduct free calls. In addition, Skype has the functions of direct exchange of text information by means of manually typed messages and file transfer. The application offers excellent sound quality. Skype does not install any spyware components, it is free and allows you to talk to other Skype users without incurring additional costs. Only calls with interlocutors using standard telephone numbers are payable, but the prices are extremely attractive. Using Skype is easy. Just a few steps: - Download Skype to your device (phone, tablet, laptop, computer) - Create a free Skype account - Log in to Skype And that's all! How do you find new contacts on Skype? -Select Skype search. - Enter your first and last name, Skype username or email address of the person you want to chat with. - Select a friend in the search results to go to the conversation window. - Enter the message and select Send For example, you can use the Skype for Business program on a laptop or a mobile phone when you are traveling, or in a conference room in another building, or you can log out of Skype for Business at work and log on to your home computer again. You can assign a different name to each of these locations, such as "On the go," "Building 4," "work," and "home." After you set a name for a location, the Skype for Business program remembers it, so when Skype for Business next time detects that you're using this particular network connection, the location name displayed with your presence will show where you are. You can download the Skype application free of charge and it is really easy to use.
