Unfortunately we live in a world full of inequalities. Many citizens, individuals and families are in a situation of poverty. Governments take different measures to alleviate the situation through social plans and government programs that seek to make individuals have a fairer and less painful pass. Latin America is one of the continents hardest hit by the vulnerability of a large part of its population. This situation occurs particularly in Brazil, the giant of the continent and one of the most important countries in the world. In order to contain the inequality gap that did not stop growing, and help the most vulnerable sectors, the government administered by the Workers' Party with Lula Da Silva as president, sanctioned in 2003 the law that granted what is known like the Bolsa de Familia program.

Bolsa de Familia is an outlay of money made by the State for families with the most needs. The amount of money they receive varies according to a certain number of factors that have to do, for example, with the number of members of the social group. Among the conditions they have to meet is that they have to be considered people in poverty and extreme poverty and have children between 0 and 17 years old. As well as having an income each of BRL 85. The objective of the measure is also to facilitate access to health and education.

To obtain the Bolsa de Familia plan, you must be registered through the Ministry of Social Development and have a NIS number. Today more than 50 million people have benefited from the project.
Now, it is very important to be up-to-date with all the information on help that is so relevant to the families who need it most.
