There are many very useful tools from Google that you may not know about yet, but once you know about their existence, you will no longer be able to live without them. This is the case of Google One, one of its star services, which it is implementing to centralize the management of the storage space that you have in one place and that will then be applied to the rest of the company's utilities that you use, such as Google Drive, Photos or Gmail.

Until now, when you acquire new storage for your account, you did it directly through Google Drive, so that it was integrated without any special name or differentiated from the rest of the services. But now everything has changed, with the Google One application you can expand your storage and this will be the one you use for all Google products, dividing it between them and without having to register anywhere, since the data is shared directly from your account and the storage you already have. Download Google One for free, you find it available for Android and iOS devices.

The Google One service centralizes all the storage contracts you have and to access it you will only have to enter its free application or go to Google Drive and click on Acquire more storage. If you still do not have a contracted plan, it will show you two alternatives, they are the cheapest, 100 and 200 gigs in the cloud. If you want to see the rest of the rates that it offers, you just have to click on More options and they will show you all. These prices are different from what they had until now.

One of the advantages of Google One is in the ease of use and management of all your storage, deciding the amount you want to be allocated to the rest of the products. And whenever you need, you can change your plan and increase your storage. On the page where you will do it, you will be shown the available rates and the amount you get with each of them, so that you can compare and choose the one that best suits you.

Google One also includes a family plan with which you can share your storage with the people who are part of your Google family. In order to enjoy this advantage, you will have to previously configure the members of this group in Google Families.
