Google, Google, Google the number one company without a doubt in the internet world. His name is repeated, it appears again and again in all the searches we make for programs, games or applications that can make our lives easier. The name Google means everything in the online environment. It is synonymous with online commerce, chats, conversations, video calls, calendars, cloud storage, educational platforms and hundreds of services that the company founded in September 1998 by Larry Page and Sergey Brin provide to users. And besides everything, and above all the tasks that we mentioned, it is a search engine that orders the enormous sea of information and data that is the web.

In order to stay informed and find all the content that we like the most and are useful on the internet, we can get the free Google app. The tool can be downloaded on Android and iOS devices and provides the user with all the benefits of the powerful search engine on their mobile or tablet.

As we well know, the great advantage of Google is that it manages to personalize the content for each of us by filtering all the information it receives, from all the existing topics in the world. With the mobile app we can obtain all this important data in the way that we like the most.

We will have the opportunity to search for nearby places, places to eat, bars or restaurants. It is also possible to carry out research on museums or places of interest and, from all of them, have an idea of their opening and closing times, people's opinions, contact information, the location on the map (to which we can easily accessible thanks to Google Maps), the menu prices and everything you need to know to make our experience as positive as possible.

In case you want to obtain news or current information, using Google will enable us to configure which articles on which subject we want to receive updates. If you are a sports fan you can ask to follow your favorite team or league with live scores, if you want election results from a country you can request to receive them instantly, if you want to know everything about the premiere of your favorite series you can also do it , and so you have endless possibilities that Google manages to accommodate your tastes and interests. In addition, the more or less you click on a publication, the tool collects those activities to prepare your next reports. If you repeatedly discard a notification with certain information, it will ask you if you want to continue receiving it since you have discarded it many times. Google's algorithm is the smartest on the market.

With the search engine app you can also search for videos and images that are of interest to you. Even if your connection is not very good, Google will do a job to optimize its results and work so that you receive the minimum and necessary information.

Not only does it offer the possibility that you find yourself up to date with everything that interests you the most, but you can also combine the use of Google with the large number of apps that the company offers to make your days more organized, simple and productive. For example, you have at your disposal the mailbox with Gmail, the Drive storage service, Google Calendar, Photos, the Google Assistant help service, Google Lens or Google Keep. All of them are synchronized with each other, providing an optimal, efficient and personalized service.

Security settings are very important and the platform has a large menu that seeks to ensure that your data is protected as it handles very sensitive information.

Google is the obligatory stop that every technological device must do. There is no terminal that can work in a one hundred percent efficient way if it does not have a good configuration of the application of the most important search engine of the network.

Although obtaining the data in a personalized way is very convenient, you have to be aware that this happens and take good care of the information that is provided. At the same time, you have to be willing to get news of all kinds so as not to be left with just a look of reality, comfortable and that doesn't allow us to think.
