We are living in a great time for the world of cinema, television series, documentaries and audiovisual productions in general. The proliferation of mass media and mainly streaming and video on demand platforms have made it easier for many shows to become popular and reach thousands of screens through a wide variety of free applications for Android and iOS.

Having so much information available is a very good thing. But the huge number of available movie and series productions can generate some confusion and it is for this reason that having a free app like Show Box can be very useful.

Show Box is a digital tool available for Android and iOS operating systems. It is free to download and its developer is Codnity. The company also has another great mobile success, Trending News, a program dedicated to current affairs.

One of the advantages of Show Box is that it will allow you to be aware of all the news from the world of show business. It is worth clarifying that the program is not for watching movies or series in a complete way but that its function is to inform. What you will have the chance to see are previews or trailers.

By using Codnity's creation you will have access to all the detailed information of the latest releases and the most important productions. Among the available data you will find release dates, filming calendar, how much was the budget used, the posters that were used to promote the film and how much was the collection so far. Using Show Box will help you understand everything that happens around your favorite feature films.

The program's interface is one of its highlights, since navigating the large amount of data it provides is very easy. You just have to search for the movie you want by name and make what you are looking for. If you want to know hours in cinemas near you, you will also have the opportunity to do so.

We know how difficult it is to choose which movie, television show or documentary to watch and for that you can count on Show Box assistance. With all the information you can get, you will not fail in your choice. You will have the possibility to use different filters such as the year of release, number of viewers or who was part of the film. All genres and categories are available in this large database.

By installing Show Box for free you will be able to watch the most watched movies and television shows at the moment, search for movies or program seasons through a wide variety of filters, configure the app so that it keeps you up to date with all the news from the entertainment world, receive suggestions according to your tastes about feature films or shows.

Personalization is another of the functions that Codnity's digital tool has to highlight. If you are a follower of an artist, director or actress in particular, you will have the opportunity to receive all the latest updates on their work as well as find out what productions they did before. You can also make comfortable and functional lists both to organize everything you have seen and to receive the pertinent suggestions of what is best for you to watch.

In a great moment for audiovisual productions, keeping abreast of everything that happens is a great advantage. Show Box is a must-have app for any movie lover. No one who is a follower of series, television shows, actors or directors should miss having such a complete tool at their disposal. Its friendly interface and the enormous amount of information it has makes it essential if you are a follower of the seventh art.

Show Box brings the world of Android and iOS a great possibility so you don't miss the best releases, budget details, release dates, casting, technical team and trailers. With the possibility of making lists to receive the best suggestions, you will make your way through the world of films, documentaries and television shows orderly and easy to follow. It is a very useful exercise to keep a line of what one looks at since it allows us to better understand the work of our favorite artists.
